

THE TEN VICTIMS BURIED.

SORROW CAUSED BY THE TERRIBLE

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION.

Funeral Services to be Held in the Open Air Today in Successanna—Only a Small Part of the Remains Have Been Found.

DOVER, July 3.—The pretty village of McCalinsville, N. J., where are the homes of the ten men who were killed yesterday morning by the terrible explosion at the Atlantic Dynamite Works, was a scene of grief to-day. Knots of weeping from the doors of ten houses.

...the search for the fragments of the bodies continued until darkness closed down over the desolate scene last evening, when it was found that about two hundred pounds of the fragments of the bodies had been recovered. A physician found a piece of a thigh bone nearly as large as a mile away. Not a fragment was found that could be identified as belonging to a particular one of the victims. The greater part of the remains is scattered in the thick grass of the field and the shrubbery of the swamp.

By direction of the Atlantic Dynamite Company the remains found were placed in handsome coffins lined with zinc, which were encased in the hulls of the tug men. At 9 o'clock this morning a coffin was lowered to the bottom to bury a corpse.

The company had purchased a lot for their interment. Thirty-eight carriages were required to convey the families and near relatives of the deceased to the public cemetery to the number of about fifty marched in procession. The only services performed at the graveside were those of the Methodist Church, which were said by the Rev. M. C. Reed. When the coffin was lowered the air was filled with cries that came from the numerous mourners. The day was a dry one and the sun shined brightly.

The public funeral services will be held in the Successana Methodist Church, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the Rev. Dr. E. W. Reed will officiate.

As the excitement rages away the fuller effects of the awful explosion are becoming apparent. The explosion has been so violent that the majority of the explosion were lifted clear from their foundations, and moved somewhat from their original places. A foundation stone, weighing about 100 lbs. has been thrown about a mile and a half away, with a large bill. Interestingly, the windows were shattered, the locks of the doors were broken, and the plaster fell from the ceiling.

TWO BULLETS HIT HIM.

Policeman the Target, and the Aim Better than the Weapons.

Policeman Hickey of the Harlem squad, while going home on Thursday night from the public baths at the foot of East 112th street, of which he has charge, saw two men running from 142nd avenue toward the river. Thinking they had been doing mischief he gave chase. He didn't follow them far. Both pulled out pistols and fired at him. One bullet hit him in the right arm and the other in the right leg, but the bullet's force broke the skin, it being too fat and hit enough in a little while to stop.

and him, and the fugitives escaped with their cheap little toy pistols into a neighboring apartment. The policeman was on duty yesterday.

Lending Guns.

A sanguine young man has started, up near the roof of one of the tallest buildings on Duane street, what seems to be a new line of business. He has a lot of coltens, single and double-barrelled, that he proposes to let, for a consideration, by the day, week, month, or year. He reasons that in a population so large as that of New York there must be a great many people who would like to get acquainted with their only land arms. But they cannot afford to make permanent investments in the purchase of guns, so he steps in to supply a long-felt want.

The Harlem police are searching for two burglars who broke into the flat of Mr. T. P. Kelly, 112 125th street, last Thursday evening. Mr. Kelly went to the flat, and found a man sitting on the sofa in the flat. They went away at one o'clock and returned at 11. They found that the front door of their flat, which is on the second floor, had been forced in with a jimmy. The thieves had stolen the gas in three hours. They packed Mr. Kelly's stolen full of things and left him crying and calling for help.

Was Full and Tumbled Off the Ferryboat.
The Hoboken ferryboat Moonachie had just started her trip on her way to Hoboken at 9½ o'clock yesterday morning when a man was seen to fall into the water from her afterdeck. The tug Blunkston picked him up. He was more than half drunk, and gave no account of himself. In St. Vincent's Hospital this afternoon he said he was John J. Reing, a laborer, at 123 Boston street, Brooklyn.

The deck hands on the Moonachie are not certain that the man who fell was the same who was reported to have fallen upon the deck and rolled off under the rail
